The tall, dark column of water and dust approached with such velocity that not more than 10 minutes from the time of its observation, and before ten dollars' worth of property could be saved, [illegible] houses were hurled to the ground [illegible] were covered four or five feet with water, and the current was of such force that boulders of large size and corresponding weight were carried away. Two hours later rain fell in torrents, lasting several hours. In all the wreck and ruin of fallen houses and rushing waters, strange to say, [illegible] was lost. On Sunday the entire [illegible] were out repairing damage as much as possible and endeavoring to have the homeless fed and cared for. The work was kept up on Monday, [illegible] look cheerful when, at four o'clock, another water spout appeared from the exact [illegible] which its predecessor was on [illegible] with equal celerity. Sixteen houses [illegible] to escape the previous visitor were [illegible] down and their contents totally [illegible]. This flood lasted three hours. The Meaning of Grant's Speech at Des Moines.

CHICAGO, Oct 2—A Washington special says Grant's lengthy speech at Des Moines is construed in but one way among nearly all classes of politicians, and that is that he does not return to private life in 1876. The speech was not particularly called for as he has remained silent on a good many more important occasions. He has also been slowly making his cabinet over in compliance with the popular standard. In his own opinion he is one of the few statesmen of the age and he believes that the entire country rests upon his shoulders. He has lately in conversation with his friends indicated an interest in public affairs that denotes a great change in his mind. [illegible] one in the past has ever carried the burdens of the presidential office easier. He has been absent from this city ever since the middle of May this year and will not return here until the middle of October. During his absence he has attended to nothing but the petty routine of small appointments and has really had less care upon his mind than an average treasury clerk.

Gen. Howard on the Mail Service to Sitka.

In Gen Howard's recent report to the war department on our possessions in Alaska it is shown that the government now pays $[illegible] per annum for twelve monthly trips of a mail steamer between Port Townsend or Portland, Oregon and the port of Sitka in Alaska. It gives the half dozen official individuals of that place the sole benefit of this expenditure on the part of the government and is an exceeding [illegible] to the inhabitants of Kodiak, [illegible], Oonalaska, Unga and St Michaels, all of which have a thousand times more trade than Sitka and the first three villages have twice the population of the town in question. This $[illegible] per annum, now literally wasted, would run a small second steamer and instead of being a drain on the treasury, would result in law, order and protection. It is also an unwarranted waste of public money, this moving the troops up to and down from Sitka every two or three years with the increased cost of their supplies counted in.

No Need of Inflation.

CHICAGO, Oct 3—A Washington special says Treasurer New, who has just returned from the west, makes a remark that can have hardly much comfort in it for inflationists. He says the western banks have more money than they can use and quite a number are preparing to surrender their circulation and take up their bonds. In proof of this may be cited the fact that last month $2,500,000 were surrendered and since July 1st $8,000,000. This is a contraction on the part of the banks. The statement above of this continued surrendering of circulation already out ought to be sufficient to put an end forever to the claim that the country needs any more money.

Spaniards in Cuba Want Peace

WASHINGTON, Oct 3—Information received here from Havana shows that there is a great deal of dissatisfaction and uneasiness in Cuba among wealthy Spaniards at the prolongation of the insurrection, by which immense damage has resulted to all material interests of this island, the injury being incalculable. They have united in a remonstrance to the Spanish government against the continuance of hostile movements to suppress the insurrection, believing that by a wise policy peace may be reached between the combatants without further bloodshed. Not succeeding in their efforts for conciliation and relief in that direction the story comes from sources which are said to be reliable that these wealthy Spaniards have either directly or indirectly proposed to the Cuban Junta at New York to co-operate with it in such measures as may effect an accommodation between parties, but that the Junta decline their overtures, declaring their determination to continue the war till their object in commencing it, the independence of Cuba, shall have been secured. There is no means of ascertaining the entire expense of the war on the part of Spain further than that forty millions of dollars were expended for military purposes in the first year of [illegible] nothing of the [illegible] in Cuban waters. [illegible] over 100,000 men, more than one half of whom were [illegible] troops [illegible] the army of Cuba exceeded [illegible]. In view of such vast expenses without results that prominent Spaniards [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] in the government and the prevalence of civil war in Spain [illegible] the [illegible] of the pacification of Cuba.

A SQUAW FIGHT.

[illegible] WOMEN OF AN INDIAN CAMP ON A [illegible] BOUT AND [illegible].

A lively fracas is reported to have occurred in a hunters' camp on the head waters of the Republican a week ago to-day. The party of hunters consisted of six white men, four of whom had squaws for wives. It was the habit of the party, as is the usual custom with such outfits, to leave pretty much all the details of the camp work to the squaws, who perform the cooking, do the washing, and such other work as is necessary to the general comfort of the lords of the kingdom. It is rarely ever the case that squaws thus invested with the care of a camp forget themselves and indulge in practices displeasing to the hunters whom they have engaged to serve, but in this instance we have a most flagrant exception.

On the day referred to the hunters left the camp for their day's work, leaving the four squaws in charge of the camp, with instructions to have a meal ready at the hour of sunset. The hunters returned about the time specified, to find a state of affairs more shocking and desperate than even these sons of border life were accustomed to see. Among the essential stores provided for their trip was a keg of whisky, which was regarded entirely safe in the hands of the squaws, but the evil spirit tempted them and they fell. The camp presented an appearance suggestive of having been struck by a double geared whirlwind or forty strokes of chain lightning.

The cooking utensils were scattered around in magnificent confusion, the flour sacks had been ripped open and the flour scattered promiscuously, knives, forks, dishes and every thing seemed to have been caught up in the whirlwind and strewn in every direction. Two of the squaws were lying lifeless within a few feet of the camp, with their faces gashed in the most ghastly manner, and their faces literally cut to pieces. One squaw had crawled several feet after she had been disemboweled, dragging her entrails after her. The other was lying on her face with her mouth in a pool of blood, her tongue cut out and her scalp lifted. The other two were lying in the midst of the confusion dead drunk, one still having a tight grip on the handle of the whisky keg.

Both were considerably mutilated with knives, one having an eye gouged out, and the other having passed through the conflict with no more serious damage than the loss of an ear and the tip end of her nose. The hunters took in the situation at a glance. The squaws had taken it into their heads to go on a [illegible] old drunk, which terminated in a [illegible] that was waged [illegible] until the tragic end. The [illegible] squaws were buried [illegible] they were [illegible], and the [illegible] squaws were taken back to the Kansas [illegible] where they were turned over to the fragment of the tribe to which they belonged. The hunters say that one squaw does first rate, and is really indispensable to the prosperity of a camp, but two or more together are sure to bring trouble. At any rate, they have tried the experiment for the last time, and are fully [illegible] woman is woman no matter what kind of a skirt she wears.—[illegible]

[illegible] Davis [illegible] began his [illegible] with these words: I would that it were possible for me to [illegible] anything as [illegible] you as that once familiar shout I heard this morning, [illegible] in [illegible] which [illegible] whatever section of what [illegible] political party it is as though I [illegible] it into the heart [illegible] an American. [illegible] the glory to be [illegible] people who have [illegible] that others could [illegible]. [illegible] the city of Mexico and [illegible] all the power of the great military [illegible] of France [illegible] reach that city triumphant. Thus it was that you carried on with each other a struggle which when foreign nations came to an equal conflict lasted [illegible] months, which yours endured for years. Understand me then. I speak to you as Americans. [illegible] myself out of whatever there is of sectional or party prejudice and I hail you all as brethren.

The agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship company paid a visit to the Puyallup valley last week in search of freight for his line. There will be about 200 tons of hops for shipment to San Francisco, which is a good showing for the valley. The latest reports from Europe represent the crop as suffering much damage from the continued rains. If true, prices on this coast will be advanced. Some have already shipped, and others will follow as soon as the hops are baled.

McDonald, Barnham and McCann, of Salem, have struck a rich quartz ledge in the [illegible] rock country and will send some 30 tons of it to San Francisco to be worked and we hope it may turn out to meet their expectations.

J J Nichols, of Sam's valley, lately met with an accident by which he lost one of his horses. His team took a baulking spell a short distance from Rogue river, where the ground sloped somewhat toward that stream, and going backward in spite of all Mr Nichols could do, fell over the bank, badly demoralizing it.

Monday evening last week, a little stepson of James Green, of Lafayette, received a somewhat painful though not dangerous wound from a vicious cow. The little fellow was feeding her through the fence and as his arm protruded through, the cow made a lunge and ran one horn through his arm tearing the flesh all loose from the bone.

Last week some parties on their way to Tillamook, camped just beyond R McCullough's sawmill, in Yamhill county, and when they resumed their journey next morning carelessly left their fire burning, which soon communicated with the adjoining timber, and but for the efforts put forth by the mill hands, the mill would have been destroyed. This is the second time within the last two months that they have had to fight the fire to save the mill.

Harrisburg was quite shocked a few days since by the sudden death of a young man by the name of Walker, who committed suicide. It seems that young Walker had become tired of this world and its surroundings and taking a pistol repaired to his room, and placing the pistol to his forehead discharged it, the contents penetrating his brain. After suffering for about three hours he breathed his last. Deceased was about twenty two years of age, and leaves a wife and child to mourn his untimely loss.

The Astorian says: John Ross opened a bunch of bananas a few days ago and found three or four small eggs nicely packed in near the stalk of the bunch. The eggs were nearly as large as canary eggs, and Mr Ross thought he would try incubation after the style of Prof Corbett, of New Jersey, and produce a tropical bird. He placed the eggs carefully in a tray, covered them with horse manure, and left them a few days when one of the finest centipedes came to the surface that was ever hatched—it was perfectly able to take care of itself from the start.

From J J Jones, just from Silver Lake valley, the Yreka Journal learns that grass is good and stock numerous in the Chewaucan, Summer Lake and Silver Lake valleys of eastern Oregon, and that there are several other valleys toward the Idaho boundary not yet inhabited by white people. At Silver Lake is a large desert containing good feed, but so infested with cattle and horse flies as to prevent stock feeding on it in summer; but it affords an excellent range in winter, being about 18 miles square. The weather is very cold, water freezing every night since last July. In winter it is so cold that very little snow falls, and what does fall is so dry that the wind soon blows it away. The country abounds in bunch grass, grease wood, and various other kinds of shrubbery suitable for stock.

A Agassiz, son of L N Agassiz, of Cheam, met with a terrible accident on Monday last whilst oiling the wheels of a threshing machine. It appears that his shirt sleeve caught on one of the cogs and his left arm was drawn in and shockingly crushed, so much so that on his arrival in this city it was deemed advisable to amputate the arm just below the elbow, which was accordingly done.

THE TERRITORIES

The Degree Temple of Clarke county will meet next Friday, the 8th inst, at 5 o'clock P M, in the hall of Lincoln Lodge No 1, I O G T, Vancouver, W T.

The ladies of Port Madison got up a picnic and clam bake at the sand spit at that place on Saturday the 28th ult, which was quite a success and wound up by a dance in the hall in the evening.

A Sunday school has been organized at the Seattle coal mines and arrangements made for religious services. Clergymen of the various denominations take turns going out there from Seattle, weekly, for that purpose.

The Seattle Homestead Association has perfected its arrangements, matured its plans for the sale of 3,000 lots within the city limits, published its prospectus or circular for general distribution and its agents will take the field for work at once.

The Seattle Coal Company is crowded to its utmost capacity by the quantity of coal demanded for shipment. Several vessels are waiting for an opportunity to load and still they come. Upward of 300 tons per day are brought in from the mines.

On Monday, the 28th ult, the clergy of Seattle and vicinity completed their ministerial association by the adoption of a constitution and by-laws. They meet on Monday of each week at 10 A M, and the pastors of the several Protestant churches unite in the enterprise.

The Olympia Transcript thinks the report of the loss of the bark Forest Queen originated with some sailor acquainted with the building of said vessel, and who desired to create a sensation and told the story of the wreck which never took place. The Forest Queen is still plying between San Francisco and Port Ludlow, having left the former place on the 2d inst.

A serious accident occurred at Mr Raeder's logging camp at Port Madison on the 27th ult. A French-Canadian, named Joseph [illegible], while standing on a board at a considerable height, chopping a tree, fell from the same. In falling he came down on his head across a windfall, inflicting severe internal injuries. He was at once conveyed in a boat to Seattle for medical treatment.

Utah's quota of stock in the centennial exhibition of next year is 2,359 shares, which, at $10 a share amounts to $23,590. How much of this is taken we have not been informed. The whole amount of stock involved in the centennial is 10,000,000, "apportioned to the different states and territories according to their population and wealth." As Nebraska's share is only $40,000, Nevada's $11,020 and Colorado's $10,340, the people of Utah territory have no right to complain of the liberality of their assessment.

There has been a party of Indians engaged for the past two or three weeks in fishing for salmon at Dofflemyer's Point, near Olympia. Besides their usual style of trolling they have possessed themselves with a large seine, which they haul at low tide with much success. These Indians belong at Port Orchard. Parties who have been fishing at Dofflemyer's and Jeal's points during the past week report the salmon very thick, and rating in size from eight to fifteen pounds. Rock cod are also to be had in great quantities in that vicinity.

DR. DE KOVEN EXPLAINS.

Dr DeKoven's views on the subject of the actual presence of Christ, God and man in one person in the bread and wine of the Holy Eucharist having been made the chief ground of opposition to his confirmation as bishop of Illinois, he has taken occasion to restate his opinions in an earnest letter, and although modified from the views accorded to him by legitimate deductions from his former outgivings on this subject, they are still sufficiently radical to be highly unpopular in this progressive age and time. The doctor, without clearly explaining the mode and manner, affirms that Christ is present in the elements "sacramentally and spiritually, and thus really and truly," and that it is not necessary that He should be there in actual body and blood, in order to make it proper and necessary to worship Him in the "elements" of bread and wine, which he claims are permeated by God's presence "actually and really" though "sacramentally and spiritually." He further boldly declares that not only does the church tolerate this doctrine, but it is "the fair and reasonable interpretation of her liturgy and formularies, and when more fully understood, will be accepted with loving hearts by all her faithful children."

Although withdrawing in his letter his acceptance of the Illinois bishopric, Dr. DeKoven does not attempt to conceal his chagrin and disappointment by impeaching the action of the standing committees in refusing upon what he argues are improper grounds to confirm his election and by setting forth the inviting nature of the field it is denied him to enter upon and cultivate. The letter is creditable to the heart and mind of the man, although, as we conceive, in the light of his opinions in regard to the Holy Eucharist and his generally high church tendencies and Romanistic tenacity for ceremony, genuflection and vain show, his withdrawal is a matter for congratulation as in the interest of the plain faith and simple forms which were the basis of the original protestant establishment, and ought to be maintained tenaciously and without compromise to the end.—St Paul Press.

THE EUROPEAN ARMAMENT

Germany has 1,700,000 men under arms, including her army and navy. For these, although she is economical beyond any other nation in Europe, she pays $100,000,000 a year. England's soldiers and sailors comprise nearly half a million men, at a yearly cost of $124,000,000. Austria spends $[illegible],000,000 a year for an army of [illegible],000 men, although she has difficulty in paying her debts. We find even little countries like Belgium and Denmark with large armies costing millions of dollars every year. Spain, whose credit is a mockery in the money markets of Europe, whose industry is paralyzed and her commerce little more than a name, Spain with every impetus to economy and retrenchment and peace must have [illegible],000 men, for which she pays over $[illegible],000,000 a year. France with her army and navy has 1,700,000 men under arms, costing $[illegible],000,000 per annum. Even Greece, who cannot suppress the brigands that infest her hills, must have 30,000 men. Italy, which would not send a commission to the Centennial Exhibition of Philadelphia for reasons of economy, can afford to keep several hundred thousands of men under arms at a cost of nearly $30,000,000 per annum, while little Holland, one of the most useful and harmless countries in Europe, finds 100,000 men necessary for her independence. Even Sweden, away, we should think, from the sweep of European ambition and protected by her isolation, is compelled to keep [illegible],000 men under arms. Switzerland has 180,000 and Turkey is rapidly going to the devil with an army of 300,000 men.

Altogether, therefore, Europe to-day has over 9,000,000 soldiers under arms, for which she spends nearly $700,000,000 per annum.—N Y Herald.

LAFAYETTE LANE AND DR. WATTS AT McMINNVILLE.

McMINNVILLE, Sept 30, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The Yamhill County Reporter has an article in the last issue in reference to the speech of Mr Lane in McMinnville and the reply of Dr Watts which tends to mislead persons with reference to what took place at that time, and also does injustice to both Mr Lane and Dr. Watts. The article reads that "During the speaking on Saturday evening Mr Lane and Dr Watts became involved in a dispute on a question of history, when Mr Lane took up his coat and hat and left the hall in a passion." Any person reading this who is not acquainted with the facts would naturally conclude that Mr. Lane and Mr. Warren were speaking against each other, and that Dr. Watts had interfered and got into a personal altercation with Mr Lane, and that that gentleman considered himself insulted and withdrew; but such is not the case. The speaking at McMinnville was not by any regular appointment. Mr Lane proposed to speak there in the evening after speaking at Lafayette, and Mr Warren, not feeling well, proposed to Mr. Lane that Watts speak for him, to which Lane agreed. The debate was opened by Mr Lane, after which Dr Watts followed, in answer to loud calls from the audience. At the commencement of Dr Watts' speech, Mr. Lane, in a gentlemanly manner, asked the privilege of withdrawing during the doctor's speech, which was granted. Mr. Watts then proceeded to review and answer the argument of Mr Lane, in a clear and comprehensive manner completely confuting every point urged or attempted to be sustained by that gentleman. Mr Lane after becoming fully satisfied and convinced that he was no equal of Dr Watts in a debate, got up and left the hall in some confusion, but not in a passion. As he was leaving he was hissed by one or two hoodlums, which, of course, was condemned by all present, as Mr. Lane did not deserve such abuse, his deportment being that of a gentleman. The complete defeat and total rout of Mr Lane in this debate is enough for him to stand, without the charge of being ungentlemanly.

REPUBLICAN.

A CORRECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

SIR: Your paper of Saturday morning last contains a paragraph relating to the Northwestern Shipping, Storage and Commission Company, which we believe is calculated to deceive the public, and especially the membership of our order. For this reason we request the courtesy of a brief reply.

In the paragraph referred to, it is stated that "out of 653 shares already subscribed, only 66 votes were given for dissolving the company." Adopting a reasonable construction of the above sentence, it means that of 653 votes (present) only 66 were in favor of dissolving the company. The facts are simply these: There were 166 shares only represented at this meeting. Of these, 67 voted against dissolution, 66 voted for it unqualifiedly, and 33 voted for dissolution in case the state grange, then in session, should fail to indorse this company. The state grange failing to make such indorsement, the 33 conditional votes became absolute, thus showing that of the 166 votes cast, 99 were in favor of dissolving the company and 67 opposed.

This statement is respectfully and fraternally submitted upon actual knowledge and information, that the truth may be known in the matter.

MONDAY MORNING OCTOBER 4 1875

THE WALLAMET RIVER IMPROVEMENT

A. L. Crandall in a letter to the Salem Statesman from Washington City claims for Senator Mitchell the credit of getting the appropriation of $[illegible] for improving the Upper Wallamet, and declares that Senator Mitchell as must be also every other Oregonian, is indignant and disgusted at the dilatory manner in which the engineer department is proceeding (or rather not proceeding) with its duties in the premises. The use of the appropriation is delayed by the neglect of Gen Michler to report his surveys. Mr Mitchell is strongly and repeatedly urging the department here to enforce prompt action by the engineer in charge and it will be due to his zeal and watchfulness alone if the appropriation does not lapse into the treasury in consequence of the neglect of the engineer.

This is unjust to Gen Michler in a double sense. The appropriation was secured solely through the recommendation of Gen Michler and not by the efforts of the Senator, and Gen Michler has always been prompt in forwarding his surveys and delays have been at the Washington end of the line.

THE RUMORS AND THE FACTS

Under the heading of "Rumor Founded on Fact" the Hillsboro Independent has this toothsome morsel:

> It is reported that J H Mitchell and Ben Holladay are on their way to Oregon. It is thought that some federal officials' heads will be decapitated soon after his arrival. It appears that Scott and Crawford have kicked against the pricks and got out of the ring traces having compromised matters with the Corbett party, and Ben H and Hipple are coming back to resuscitate the Bulletin and chop off Scott's and Crawford's heads. This is reported to be the substantial basis of the compromise: Corbett is to go to the senate, Scott assumes the editorial control of the OREGONIAN, Hill wishing to go to work in the law business, Thompson to have the office of district attorney for another term etc etc.
> If this be true it explains why Scott and Crawford were willing to support Whitney, why the OREGONIAN deserted the Independent party, many of whose members put their hands in their pockets to support it in its day of trial, and some of whom lost their official heads for the principle involved; why Mr Corbett has no further fight to make against the ring, and why the OREGONIAN is made to do nothing but smile and smile at both the Independent and Republican parties in this campaign.

"Rumor Founded on Fact" this may be, but we have no recollection of seeing before so much rumor founded on so little fact. The facts are so far as we know them that the Bulletin has suspended and that Mr Holladay is on his way to Oregon. All the rest is rumor, and so much of it, at least as relates to the OREGONIAN and "the Corbett party" is rumor without the slightest foundation in fact. We have never had, directly or indirectly, the slightest intimation that Mr Corbett contemplates being a candidate for the Senate, Scott does not assume the editorial control of the OREGONIAN, but the OREGONIAN will be under the editorial control of the same person who has been its recognized editor hitherto, and as to Thompson's being District Attorney, we have no idea the matter has ever been mentioned by him. He has made a faithful and efficient officer during the time he has served however and that fact is so highly appreciated by the people that if an election for the office were to be held to day he would most likely be his own successor if he wanted to be.

If it is true that Messrs Scott and Crawford have "kicked against the pricks and got out of the ring traces," they are entitled to a big long credit mark. Doubtless a good many men who have acted with the ring have become disgusted with it, and we hope that not only Scott and Crawford but several others may conclude, if they have not already done so, that it is time to let the country and the Republican party be freed from ring politics. The ring is, if we are not greatly mistaken practically broken up, and it is the earnest wish of the people that it may never be reorganized.

With respect to the ill tempered remark of the Independent about the OREGONIAN's deserting the Independent party we leave the people to judge of that, not doubting they will be more just than the Independent which well knows there is not a word of truth in it. The OREGONIAN has neither received nor asked any support from the Independents or anybody else except that support which it has received in the legitimate way of subscriptions and advertising, which they have voluntarily given for value received. Independents Republicans and Democrats have subscribed to the OREGONIAN because it is a good newspaper, and they can get the worth of their money by taking it. We expect no support on any other basis. The OREGONIAN smiles and smites just as it considers smiling or smiting is deserved without respect to party and it will persist in that course whether its highly esteemed friend the Independent approves or condemns.

In the closing paragraph which we omit to copy the editor of the Independent is so kind as to express his confidence that the editor of the OREGONIAN was not a party to the supposed compromise. We appreciate the good opinion of our brother and assure him he is entirely correct on that point and that he would have been equally correct in assuming that the whole story about the compromise is pure fiction without a single shred or shadow of truth in it.

GRANT'S DES MOINES SPEECH

A Washington special dispatch to Chicago reported in this morning's telegrams says the President's speech at Des Moines is construed as a declaration that he does not intend to retire to private life at the close of his present term. We never had a doubt that his famous third term letter was a bid for re-election instead of a disavowal of such a purpose. But it requires considerable astuteness if the Des Moines speech was correctly telegraphed to find in it anything that warrants the construction placed upon it in the special to Chicago. It was an extraordinary speech, [illegible] extraordinary mainly on account of its length. [illegible] Grant [illegible] little given to speech making. The Washington dispatch is [illegible] colored. We are prepared to believe Grant is not tired of the burdens and responsibilities of the Presidency. We are prepared to believe he regards himself as the one man who can lead the Republican party on to victory in 1876. We are prepared to believe he would not shrink from using whatever influence his position places in his power to perpetuate himself in office provided he can do so without peril. But we are hardly prepared to believe that just at this time, when every Republican convention that assembles declares the party is opposed to the third term scheme, he would make a declaration of his purpose to take the field again. If he contemplates being a candidate he will certainly have the good sense to await the ebb of the tide of public sentiment on that subject to declare that intention.

But whether he will do so or not, Grant will in all human probability retire at the close of his present term. The people want no third term, and especially they want no third term of Grant. His first administration was very popular. His second is very unpopular. Whether justly or unjustly is of little consequence but he has lost the confidence of the country and they will not consult his pleasure about relegating him to private life. Whether they change for the better or for the worse, they are going to make a change. The next President will be a Conservative Republican or a Democrat. Neither Grant nor any of his school of Republicans can be elected in 1876. That may be set down as just about as nearly sure as anything in the future of politics.

A communication will be found in this morning's issue giving the exact facts with regard to the dissolution of the Northwestern Shipping Storage and Commission Company and correcting the wrong impression which our notice before was likely to convey. Though this card is over no signature its correctness is unquestionable. Our note on the subject the other day, was based upon information obtained from a prominent member of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry and was technically correct though without the explanation given in the card this morning it might mislead readers. No doubt this was wholly unintentional on the part of our informant, as it certainly was on our part.

The Circleville Ohio Herald says: "The fact that Sam Cary has mounted all the Democratic hobbies, like Stickney in his seven horse act and ridden them all so rapidly and promiscuously that he has not only outstripped Uncle William but has left that venerable personage far in the rear is beginning to be apparent to everybody. Sam never was contented to be a 'mere feller' so long as there was a possibility of becoming a 'h—l of a feller.' He is the great, grand gyascutus of the campaign."

If the Journal's account of Major Johnson's assault upon the editor of that paper was correct, the act was certainly a very cowardly one. But the style of personal abuse in which the Journal went after him for it is intolerably scurrilous. No assault could justify such journalism, though it might be a mitigating circumstance. Public sentiment will hardly consider the assault a sufficient provocation for the Journal's abuse of Johnson's family.

Guibord is to be buried in consecrated ground vi et armis, and then his grave is to be doubly consecrated by the deposit therein of some preparation of "villainous saltpetre" or something else, calculated to make it unhealthy for the holy ghouls who are getting up riots over the remains to meddle with it.

The St Louis Globe recommends Minister Washburne as a successor of Mr McMahon in France but thinks he will hardly do for the presidency of the United States.

We the undersigned have thoroughly tested and examined the New Wheeler & Wilson Nos 6 and 7 Manufacturing Machines and find them superior to any we have ever seen for the purposes for which they are recommended. They are adapted to a great range of work and make a perfect stitch on all kinds of material. The motion being rotary they run with great ease and quietness and as every part is perfectly finished they must be very durable.

OVERBOARD —Drowned.—John Christophson a deckhand employed on the Emma Hayward fell overboard from that steamer while she was lying at the O S N Co's dock between 3 and 4 o'clock on Saturday morning and was drowned before assistance could reach him About 10 o'clock on Friday evening he, in company with several persons Christophson visited a saloon in the city and became intoxicated He came on board the Hayward about 3 o'clock on Saturday morning very much under the influence of liquor After eating a cold lunch he was induced to go to bed Very soon after retiring Christophson arose and walked out on the steamer's guard It was quite dark and being intoxicated the unfortunate fellow lost his balance and fell head first into the river Before any of his companions could come to the rescue Christophson had disappeared beneath the dark cold waters, and miserably perished Soon after the steamer started for the Cascades and search for the body was deferred Grappling irons and ropes were obtained yesterday afternoon and the body brought to the surface after a short search and conveyed to Lachapelle's boat-house Coroner Wetmore was notified, and repairing to the place proceeded to hold an inquest Following is the verdict of the jury

We, the undersigned jurors summoned by J A Wetmore coroner to inquire into the death of a man found in the Willamette river at the foot of Ash street in the city of Portland and Multnomah county do find as follows We find that the name of the deceased is John Christophson and that he was a native of Norway, and about 28 years of age and that he came to his death by being accidentally drowned off the steamer Emma Hayward at the foot of Ash street, on the morning of the 2d of October, 1875, he being employed as deck hand on the Emma Hayward

ABOUT KALAMA'S HOTELS —"Justitia" writing from Kalama says "Kalama is the subject of a good many notices from traveling newspaper correspondents and most of these are of an uncomplimentary character Because the town has failed to meet the expectations of its founders, it is made the subject of continual gibes from every stray correspondent that comes along Now this is all very well It may amuse the correspondents if it don't interest the public, but somehow, it strongly reminds us of the kind of courage that would kick a man when he is down Your correspondent, Opyt, writing under date of Sept 28th, makes believe he had trouble in finding a hotel or place of refreshment in Kalama That is too bad; perhaps he did have trouble but it wasn't the fault of the hotel by any means. Now we have two very respectable hotels here, and one, an exceptionally good one, is situated immediately in front of and very near the steamer landing Now Mr Editor, we are just as big as anybody of our size, and just as good, too, for that matter and if anybody misrepresents us we will take up our little hatchet and go for him

IMPORTANT CASE DECIDED —A very important lawsuit was decided Saturday last in the circuit court for Clackamas county involving the title to the site of the old Linn City mills and breakwater, and the land and water privilege known as "The Island" at the falls of the Wallamet The property sold for $40 000 more than twenty years ago The contest was between the canal and locks company, James M. Moore and others, heirs of Robert Moore deceased After a trial which lasted three days, most of the time being taken up in presenting documentary evidence relating to the title, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the Lock Company The case was argued by Senator Kelly and Mr H Y Thompson on behalf of the company and by Messrs J Williams and W C Johnson for the heirs of Moore

CHASED BY A BEAR —An exchange contains the following account of a narrow escape recently run by a well known hunter of East Portland While on a late hunting expedition he was sauntering along dreaming, of bulling and bearing the money market when he was suddenly awakened by a noise close to him and upon turning found a bear making towards him Thinking it a favorable time to bull the market he fired at the bear, but unfortunately his foot at the same time slipped and he fell down a declevity and the bear after him Thinking prudence the better part of valor, the would be bullist made for a tree which he climbed the bear remaining at the bottom to protect him From this position he was relieved after a painful hour's sitting by the bear being killed by another hunter

PREMATURE The publication Saturday of Mullen's amusing poem of seaside incidents was a little premature as he intended to revise it before it went into print It got on the copy hook by an oversight but we venture to think that making allowance for some typographical errors it was about as good a thing of its kind without any revision, as has appeared for many a day

OUR CANDIDATES.

LANE WHITNEY AND WARREN ON THE ORO FINO [illegible]

There have been more brilliant performances at Oro Fino Theater than that of Saturday evening but it is not often the audience there is so large as it was then or so good humored None of the speeches would bear criticism Even Mr Lane professionally a talker spoke in a disjointed way and his argument was as loose as his sentences Mr Warren who has not so many words to waste was on that account more forcible than the Democratic contestant although when he saw his way to make a point it was done less keenly and with less severity than Mr Lane Mr Whitney being a preacher was more earnest than either of the other two being in addition an Independent he was also less biased but there were times when he was as wordy as Mr Lane It was rather an original stump, but It was almost two to one Mr Warren had to parry the thrusts of both Mr Lane and Mr Whitney When Mr Lane touched Mr Whitney at all it was with a blunted weapon and Mr Whitney, being anything but courteous, did as he was done by The audience however showed no favor Cheers were given very much as they seemed to be deserved Each of the candidates obtained a respectful and appreciative hearing

Mr Lane

Was the first speaker He started out with an impeachment of General Grant and his administration denouncing the policy pursued in Alaska as being worthy of the president and party that approved the Louisiana force bill Even in connection with the Philadelphia Exposition as the pledges that had been required President Grant had shown a spirit of bigotry and intolerance, and Mr Warren at Jacksonville had shown that he was imbued with the same feeling for he had there referred to the fact that on the marriage of Miss Semmes the Confederate flag had been used to decorate her bridal chamber He would like to ask Mr Warren how he could approve of Grant's administration and yet join in denouncing the back pay grab and the increase of the presidential pay or how he could approve of a president who instead of remaining at Washington attending to his executive duties as by law he ought to do unless there was an infectious disease prevailing in that city was running here and there throughout the country, no plague causing his absence from the capital but that devil may care disease that was chronic with him [Cheers] Passing from these generalities Mr Lane took up the tariff question His understanding was that the government of this country was intended to subserve the greatest good for the greatest number but this infamous tariff instead of being applied solely for the raising of revenue, was imposed and perpetuated for the protection of monopolists On iron for instance, the tariff was so high as to prevent importation, and it was simply adding to the legitimate profit on that article to retain it Then, with a duty of 64 per cent on woolen goods no country could compete with us in that line and the consequence was that when such goods were purchased, so much additional had to be paid over and above the legitimate price. That was not the worst feature of the system It had tended to ruin our commercial navy Up to 1860 we had as good a mercantile marine as any nation What had become of it He had asked the question of Mr Warren early in the campaign and after pondering over it a day or two that gentleman came to the conclusion that it was Admiral Semmes who destroyed our shipping [Laughter] The Burlingame treaty was another instance of Republican legislation and diplomacy and on this coast its effects were grievously felt Chinamen were invited and induced to come here until they were as pests on our shore, while white men who ought to be encouraged to come here, were discouraged So far as corruption was concerned, it was general throughout the present administration, but nowhere perhaps had it been more obvious than in the management of our Indian affairs He alluded particularly to the Red Cloud revelations, and said that such practices not only robbed the treasury, but drove the Indians to desperation and to the murder of the unoffending white settler Did they think that so great a general as Capt Jack had for one moment imagined that he and his little band could conquer this nation? He was driven to the act simply by desperation Instead of the murder of the settlers being allowed to be inquired into by a court of competent jurisdiction the government interfered and the strong arm of the law was thrown around the murderers Then, again, the Indians who murdered Canby and Thomas were tried by drumhead court martial, convicted and hanged but the Indians who murdered our fellow-citizens in the state of Oregon had been paraded throughout the United States, yea, and the bloody hands of Shacknasty Jim had clutched the hands of Gen Grant in the capitol of the nation [Cheers] He read and commented on the story relating to appropriations for Blackfeet Indians in Montana, in which he said he did not place much confidence, inasmuch as he had found it in the OREGONIAN and that was a paper whose editor participated in a platform that denounced Grant and yet turned round and supported Henry Warren a gentleman that endorsed Grant's administration It had been said that he was opposed to the free school system If it were not for the presence of ladies he would say this was a lie and having said it he would not retract it Something had been made out of the fact that this question was not mentioned in the Democratic platform neither were the ten commandments, and yet was it to be said that he did not endorse the decalogue? It was absurd to suppose that the Democracy were opposed to free schools Every cent in the school fund in this state was obtained as a result of Democratic legislation, and that party would be the last to destroy or impair that fund This question was not sprung upon until he got to McMinnville Now McMinnville was the former and was now the present home of Mr Warren and there was not a free school there It was no wonder then that the people there should have raised that question He was sorry for Mr Warren but he guessed this was the only occasion for bringing up the question [Laughter and cheers] In conclusion the honorable gentleman said that if returned to congress he should labor to study the interests of the state and would do all he could to facilitate such railroad enterprises as that in which Col Chapman is interested The form of government under which we live had been bought by the blood of our fathers If it was to be retained and perpetuated, let the Democracy be placed in power and the affairs of the nation administered upon the grand principles of that party

There was considerable cheering as Mr Lane resumed his seat Just as the demonstration was about to subside,

Mr Whitney

Sprang forward He should like his friend Mr Lane to receive all the benefit of these cheers It was his desire to come before them quietly The Independent was a little boy After this introduction he grappled with the financial problem He was in favor of a tariff but not a high protective tariff This duty on imports served a double purpose first for revenue and then for protection. If Mr Lane went into the cotton states and talked about free trade there he would be very sure never to get to congress He might be a free trade man on the west side of the Pennsylvania mountains where there were no manufactories but would he be a free trade man on the east side? The question ought to be looked at broadly and not as it affected a particular section There had been such a constant drain upon specie to send abroad that as one result there was not money enough in Oregon to carry off the surplus grain What had become of the money? It had gone to England and elsewhere to buy manufactured articles that ought to have been produced here What was the condition of the treasury of the United States? This was the grand question that was agitating the people to day Mr Lane would tell them that he was [illegible] he believed in [illegible] paying its [illegible] money of his own and [illegible] Mr Lane [illegible] was all [illegible] [Laughter] [illegible] the Democrats [illegible] of congress [illegible] and the answer was already here There was not money enough in the country [illegible] specie [illegible] greenbacks [illegible] in the town of Albany [illegible] [Laughter] This was exaggerated [illegible] There was perhaps specie enough to buy the wheat of Oregon but [illegible] They talked of [illegible] But could they [illegible] greenbacks worth [illegible] How then, could the greenbacks be made worth their face? His answer was stop the drain of specie from the United States and keep it in the treasury Then any one knowing there was five hundred millions in the treasury would take a greenback and say "This is good we will take it at par" More than this, there would be a premium on them in this state People would prefer them to gold and with the specie in the treasury it would be very easy to establish branch banks in Portland San Francisco and other points of commerce where there was a necessity for money to carry off our produce This question of finance was the one which was calling for a decision The reason it had not been decided already was simply that because of this dangerous and profligate waste of money, there was nothing left to settle it with Who were the men who had helped to bring about this state of affairs Who voted for the Dawes compromise inflation bill (as it was called? Did Mr Kelly? Yes Did Mr Mitchell? Yes He did not say these gentlemen were answerable for the result of that measure but he wanted to show that the men they had been sending to Washington stood absolutely the same on the question Both the other candidates were hard money men as they said but send them to Washington, and what would they do? They would fall right into the arms of those who stood politically identified with them on this side of the house or that The position he took as an Independent was that the principle of patriotism was above party and rested in the hearts of the people The Independents acknowledged that there was a necessity for a change of administration Their platform denounced the third term scheme [cheers] demanded the earliest possible repeal of the act doubling the salary of the president of the United States [renewed cheers], positively and unqualifiedly affirmed that the means belonging to the common schools should be sacredly guarded and should not be used for any sectarian purpose [Cheers] It affirmed also that the party realized the danger of that profligate and alarming recklessness of the present administration It was his firm conviction that the times called for men to stand aloof from party influences and consider only what is best for the country There was a thorn in the flesh in the South and yet the disposition of the men who were being sent to congress seemed to be to enlarge instead of closing up the wound Might they not hope that in the next presidential campaign there would be a conservative man who would go to no extreme, either to the right or to the left, but consider the best interests of North and South alike, and bring them together as brethren The honorable gentleman proceeded to give a very clear explanation of his position as the Independent nominee He refuted a charge that he had received money to take the field against Mr Warren so as to secure the return of Mr Lane He was not a hired man he was paying his own expenses and not one dollar of corruption soiled his hands [Cheers] He acknowledged he had a purpose in this campaign It was to beat his friend Mr Lane [Laughter and cheers] If he did not beat him do not let it be said that he had turned the state over to his Democratic friend It was the Republicans who would do that

Mr. Warren

Said he was not present to excuse corruption in any party but no party ought to be condemned because some of its members had been proved to be dishonest Mr Whitney had that evening made a somewhat different argument from that he had been heretofore using It looked now as if instead of being simply a candidate for congress, he was fishing for the next presidency Certainly he seemed to be the "only man able to deal with this great financial problem that our best statesmen confessed themselves unable to unravel. That being the case and if the people were not willing to send him to congress—as he was sure they were not (laughter)—he ought to consider it his duty as a patriot to give his time alone and go to Washington to assist the financiers and others who were trying to deal with the question Mr. Lane had always something to say about corruption in Indian affairs, and he had a preamble which he read on every occasion, about beef, pork mutton and so forth (laughter) and then there was that extract which he read, taken from a Democratic paper, but which had happened to be copied into the OREGONIAN There was not a particle of truth in the whole statement, but Mr Lane, instead of admitting that said he would not vouch for it because it had appeared in the OREGONIAN Mr Lane had not a word to say about the corruptions of a few years ago, when Indian agents, out of $1,500 salaries, accumulated from $40 000 to $50,000 It was not robbery then Nor had he anything to say about the corruptions General Grant and his administration were ferreting out and the punishment that was being meted to the offenders Instead of having laid himself open to condemnation, General Grant was entitled to the thanks of the nation for the energy he had displayed in bringing to justice those whose aim it had been to plunder the public treasury [Cheers] Under Grant's Republican administration corruption was being exposed, under Democratic rule it was covered up There was a case at Astoria in which $80,000 was involved, but the accounts were balanced by the scratch of a pen That was at the time General Lane was in the Senate of the United States [Loud cheering, and a voice "Say that again!"] There was no more doubt that there was corruption then than that there was corruption now, but in those days the corruption was not exposed What we wanted was that it should be exposed He had asked Mr Lane to name the corruptionists and the robbers and thieves he talked about, but no names had been given Having been a Federal office holder himself he asked Mr Lane if he was meant, and the answer was "No" [Cheers] Let the corruptionist be punished, whoever he was, be he a constable or the President of the United States [Cheers] As for Mr Whitney, he thought he was ungrateful to the two or three Federal officers at Salem who tried to get him nominated He wished they had succeeded in placing him upon the platform he so much desired to get upon, and which he now called a corrupt platform Mr. Whitney had altered his mind since he agreed to receive the joint nomination, and did not want to receive one unless he received the other He had said the Independent party was a little boy—that it was not more than a year or two old but Mr Whitney as an Independent was not more than a month and a half old Last June he voted in a way which showed he was no more Independent than he (Mr Warren) was but now he wanted to step right between the two parties and was trying to convince the people of Oregon that the country would go to destruction if he were not sent to congress [Laughter] Both Mr Whitney and Mr Lane had raised the cry that there was extravagance in the national administration, but the large reduction that had taken place in the national debt as well as the reduction of taxation did not look much like extravagance As to the salary grab a majority of the Democrats voted for it, but not a majority of the Republicans so that if there was blame in the matter at all it ought to go where it rightly belonged. Moreover, the Republicans were forced to return the money and the party condemned them by not sending one of them back to congress but not one of the Democrats disgorged As to the presidential increase he was opposed to it and opposed to it as a Republican Mr Lane had introduced the subject of the Modoc war in connection with the charges he made against the president but he ought to know that General Grant was no more responsible for what took place then than for what took place during the Cayuse or the Yakima war The trouble in Alaska was a matter which would probably be settled through Gen Howard Then as to McMinnville and the school question He had only been in McMinnville for a little over three months and had been absent from the place for ten years If the gentleman would cast his mind back to 1850 he would find that there was not at that time a free school in Washington City The public schools and girls were supported by a tax and [illegible] Washington [illegible] Democratic [illegible] [Cheers] [illegible] sectarian [illegible] [Cheers] [illegible] the territory [illegible] [illegible] that section of the [illegible] Mr Warren [illegible]

about to disperse, when Mr Lane rushed upon the stage, and in five minutes made a rejoinder that was perhaps more effectual than his speech-in-chief, and was almost as long, for he talked with a rapidity that startled Mr Whitney out of his seat and caused Mr Warren to make a quick exit through the wings He closed with the remark that on election day he would be elected by 1,500 majority and after that his two opponents had not a word to say

But he never got further than that. Some broken windows in the neighborhood, a pervading odor of ancient eggs which still hangs about the place and splinters of wood scattered about the square alone remain to remind the Vicorians of the visit of the Cleveland corn doctor

[illegible] The [illegible] says "The Imperial Academy of Sciences at Vienna has taken up a question in which all Europe may be said to be interested namely the decrease of the quantity of water in springs, streams and rivers A circular accompanied by an able and instructive report, has been addressed to scientific societies in other countries in the hope that they may be persuaded to undertake observations which, in course of time, may furnish data for practical use The Academy calls attention to the fact that for some years past a diminution of the waters of the Danube and other great rivers has been noticed and especially since the modern practice of cutting down forests without regard to consequences has prevailed The Austrian Engineers and Architects Union have also taken the question in hand, and appointed a 'Hydrotechnic Committee' to collect facts and prepare a report The Danube, the Elbe and the Rhine were each assigned to two members, while the other two were to examine into the meteorology of the subject and into the influence which glaciers and Alpine forests may have on the general result The committee regard the question as urgent, they recommend the immediate adoption of remedial measures and they are unanimous in declaring that the prime cause of the injurious decrease of water is the devastation of forests. The general aspect of financial matters is brighter and within a week or ten days at most, it is expected that a much improved condition of affairs will be realized An unusually large movement of the wheat crop to the various warehouses along the lines of transportation is noticed and it indicates that the farmers are rapidly preparing to take advantage of any condition of the market which may appear favorable Transactions at this time are not numerous the monetary supply being rather short to warrant much of a speculative movement. Exporters prefer to await the arrival of vessels as but few ships are under charter this season and engagements made as the vessels come [illegible] might preclude the [illegible] of freights and rest of cargoes so necessary to enable men to act in the matter of buying on a strictly business policy

[illegible] Banks [illegible] Nevada and Califor[illegible] in San Francisco [illegible] talked of in business [illegible] as it is anticipated that at least a share [illegible] the golden stream to flow from them will reach [illegible] market and give greater activity to business [illegible] of every character Our telegraphic re[illegible] of the monetary markets in San Francisco will be read with interest.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

FOR THE SPEEDY RELIEF OF

Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons,

Has been widely used during the last twenty five years in the treatment of these distressing diseases and with such unvarying success that it has gained the reputation of being infallible The shakes or chills once broken by it do not return until the disease is contracted again This has made it an accepted remedy and trusted specific for the Fever and Ague of the West and the Chills and Fever of the South

Ayer's Ague Cure eradicates the noxious poison from the system and leaves the patient as well as before the attack It thoroughly expels the disease so that no Liver Complaints, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Dysentery or Debility follow the cure Indeed where Disorders of the Liver and Bowels have occurred from Miasmatic Poison it removes the cause of them and they disappear Not only is it an effectual cure but if taken occasionally by patients exposed to malaria it will expel the poison and protect them from attack Travelers and temporary residents in Fever and Ague localities are thus enabled to defy the disease The General Debility which is so apt to ensue from continued exposure to Malaria and Miasm, has no speedier remedy

For Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy
